I'm writing this email to apply for the IT position open within the Organization. I am confident that I fit the position well because I'm strong, young, motivated and goal focused. I possess the ability to learn and adapt fast according to different environments and situations. Therefore, I will be of great asset to the department's workforce.

In my career, I have collected various skills such as Software Development, data management, presentation skills, project management and more. Coming from a computer engineering background, it is easy for me to work with any software services with very minimum introductory assistance. I've worked with different personnel, I'm patient and possess the ability to blend in teams and work professionally.

I'm open to meeting with new experiences in life because they are a catalyst to personal growth. Furthermore, I am ready to take a leap and work with UNICEF accordingly in order to achieve the objectives and goals set in helping Africa work better.

Thank you for taking time to review my application, I'm excited to learn more about this opportunity from you. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Best Regards

Jawad Charles
